

New Generation Training 2020

Overview

At Accent International, we work with blue-chip companies – global names.

We also work with the Senior Management – CEOs, CFOs, even Presidents and Board Members.

They tell us that, in addition to very specialist language for these key decision-makers at the top of the tree, there is another group of people who need the type of expert training which Accent International, as a UK Centre of Excellence, has been giving since 1988.

That group they are speaking about are the younger managers, management trainees and even interns.

This course is for them.

Participant Profile

The minimum age for participants on this course is 21. But there is also a maximum age – and that is 30.

Most people of that age who are working for a company have a good basic knowledge of English already as they will have almost certainly studied it at school.

What they probably won't have is fluency, confidence, specialist business language, communications skills and skills in performing their work in English.

What they will have is intelligence, enthusiasm, energy and motivation.

Course Outline

The New Generation course is designed to fit the needs, availability and budget constraints for younger professionals.
