A Creole house, a lush garden – and seriously good French teaching.

Since 2011, DP Langues has welcomed learners from around the world to an authentic Creole house in Saint-Paul, on Réunion's west coast – a market town famous for the island's largest open-air market. Courses are taught by certified native-speaker teachers, structured on the CEFR from A1 to C2, and every student leaves with an end-of-course attestation. The school is Qualiopi certified, France's state quality standard for training providers.

One local team. The whole stay, handled.

Send us your clients – our incoming team handles requests end-to-end, from level placement and accommodation to what they'll do on Saturday. Personalized advice at every step, so your students land softly and you keep a single point of contact.

● Accommodation sourcing

Carefully selected host families – with evening French practice over traditional Creole curry dinners – plus cosy studio apartments in ideal locations, and larger flats or houses for couples and longer stays.

● Getting around

Preferential-rate car, scooter and bicycle rental through the school's privileged local partnerships – booked before your clients arrive.

● Activity organization

The team helps arrange canyoning, diving, kayaking, hiking, paragliding, helicopter flights, cooking workshops and cultural outings – afternoons and weekends are free by design.

● Welcome & advising

Every stay starts with the Monday welcome breakfast, and every student gets an advisor for personalized support throughout the program.
