Mdina is the old capital of Malta. It is a medieval walled town situated on a hill in the centre of the island.

Also known as the "Silent City" it is believed that there has been a settlement on the site of Mdina since around 800 B.C. It was the capital of the island until Valetta eclipsed it in importance and, as a consequence of that, the city was bypassed by the ravages of time. The result is that it is now one of the finest examples of an ancient city anywhere in Europe.

Entering through the gate is like stepping back in time. The well-preserved buildings give a feeling of what life was like many centuries ago.

Much of the town was destroyed in the earthquake of 1693 but this allowed the Cathedral and Bishop's Palace to be rebuilt on a much grander scale.

Situated between Malta and Gozo, the smaller island of Comino is the perfect hideaway and a paradise for snorkellers, divers and windsurfers. Named after the cumin herb once grown here, Comino, only 3.5 square kilometres, is car-free and apart from one hotel, is entirely uninhabited.

Comino is also ideal for walkers and photographers. With no urban areas or cars on the island, one can easily smell the scent of wild thyme and other herbs.

Comino is a popular location for filmmakers. It appears in the movies Troy (starring Brad Pitt), The Count Of Monte Cristo (starring Jim Caviezel) and Swept Away (starring Madonna).

The Blue Lagoon is one of the best beaches in Malta, situated between the island of Comino and the islet of Cominotto. The crystal clear waters in Blue Lagoon reflect the blue sky with a lovely cyan and let you see the pure white sand bottom of this part of the Mediterranean Sea. The Island is a third the size of Malta, more rural and simple, its culture and way of life rooted in fishing and agricultural activity. Exuding a relaxed pace of life, Gozo is the ideal secluded safe haven and at just 25 minutes or so by ferry from Malta, the trip can easily be made for even the shortest stay.

Valletta, Malta’s capital and a UNESCO World Heritage site, is nothing short of an open-air museum. It is a living experience of Baroque architecture, a monument built by the Knights of St. John nearly five centuries ago. Throughout the years, Valletta has welcomed emperors, heads of state, artists and poets and is now the permanent seat of the Maltese government.

This is the city the Knights of Jerusalem built after the Great Siege. Valletta was given its name after the hero, Grand Master Jean De La Vallette who gallantly led the Maltese towards a victory over the Turks. Valletta is also known by great historians as the most fortified city in the world and the envy of all of Europe. A capital city that will mesmerize you upon reaching its shore with its honey coloured stone and fortified bastions. On the horizon you will see a unique myriad of church spires and domes. Valletta has thirty three churches.

The Malta 5D Cinema is a new generation attraction which allows you to feel the ‘real’ emotions of the movie. A dive into the midst of a bright and virtual world with images in 3D that simulate the visual movements and creates a so called, “participation effect”. The 5D cinema concept offers specially manufactured seats which strictly follow the movement that you are seeing on the screen, whether it’s flying over the open seas or racing through the narrow streets, your seat will turn you left to right or toss you up and down, enabling you to fully participate in the film. The seat movements, together with the water spray and air blast effects, complement this audio-visual experience. In a 5D cinema you are not just a spectator!

The Three Cities offer an intriguing insight into Malta and its history and offer the visitor a slice of authentic life as well as a glimpse into Malta's maritime fortunes.

The Three Cities can rightly claim to be the cradle of Maltese history, as Vittoriosa, Senglea and Cospicua have provided a home and fortress to almost every people who settled on the Islands.

Their harbour inlets have been in use since Phoenician times: the docks always providing a living for local people, but also leaving them vulnerable when Malta's rulers were at war. As the first home to the Knights of St. John, the Cities' palaces, churches, forts and bastions are far older than Valetta's.

Mosta Dome. Built in 1860 over another church that was built in 1614, the church of St. Mary is the Parish church of Mosta. The awesome dome is the fourth largest in the world and famous due to an incident that took place during WWII – a bomb, which pierced the dome in 1942 landed on the church floor and slid across the floor without exploding! The church was crowded when the bomb hit and nobody was hurt. The bomb is now on display in a small museum attached to the church.

Blue Grotto is a natural picturesque grotto and its neighbouring system of caverns mirrors the brilliant phosphorescent colours of the underwater flora. From the nearby Wied iz-Zurrieq one can also see the small island of Filfla. Filfla is uninhabited except for several bird colonies and a unique species of lizards that live there. When Malta was a British colony, the island of Filfla was used for target practice by the British Armed Forces.

Dingli Cliffs are an impressive sight, especially if viewed from sea level on an island cruise. They are the Island's natural fortress, one bastion the Knights did not have to build to protect themselves. From the cliff tops, one of the most striking views and sheerest drops is just west of Dingli village. Dingli Cliffs seem to exude a mysterious charm especially late evening on calm summer days when the sunsets here can be dramatic.

Traditional Open Air Market at Marsaxlokk

Programme:

- Marsaxlokk market
- Time for shopping and haggling prices!

Markets are the heart of the Maltese week and a cultural tour of their own. Almost every town and village has its version. They are the time and place for socialising, catching up with neighbours and local news as much as for buying daily necessities. You'll find them a strange assortment from new to old household goods, clothing, music and toys.

Marsaxlokk is a traditional fishing village located in the south-eastern part of Malta. There are many beautiful places in Malta, but one of the most fascinating is certainly this traditional Mediterranean market in Marsaxlokk. Beyond the spectacle of the fish and produce, there are also souvenirs such as honey and local wine you can bring home.

Hagar Qim & Mnajdra temples

Programme:

- Guided tour of the temples

The 5,000 year old Hagar Qim ("HA-jar eem") temple is the best-preserved of several ancient limestone temples in Malta.

Hagar Qim is thought to date from the "Ggantija phase," which is about 3600 to 3200 BC. Unlike most other Maltese temples, it is a single temple rather than a complex of two or three.

The temple is laid out on a clover-leaf shape and consists of four or five apses, with a forecourt and facade. This design is typical of Neolithic temples across Malta.

One noteworthy characteristic of Hagar Qim are its larger orthostats (upright stones) at the corners, which are notched to take the second of horizontal courses above.

The interior of the temple is more closed off than in other Maltese temples and the view of it seems to have been limited to porthole slabs. A stone decorated with spiral designs and a free-standing altar decorated on all sides were found here.

The right apse has an interesting inner enclosure made of low stone slabs. The left apse has three high table altars and a low-standing pillar at the end. Three steps up from the left apse lead to an additional chamber.

In the outer enclosing wall, note the first upright stone (orthostat) behind the right-hand corner of the façade - this is one of the largest of any temple, at 6.4m long and close to 20 tons in weight. Other related ruins have been uncovered near the main temple, and two "fat lady" statues discovered here are now in display in the national museum in Valletta.

St Paul's Grotto - The 16th century Church of St Paul is built over a cave where, according to tradition, St Paul took shelter around 59AD. It is believed that St Paul preached here and baptised the country's first converts to Christianity. The cave walls are believed to have miraculous healing powers. Behind the statue of St Paul is an entrance to more catacombs.

St Paul's Catacomb - The large St Paul's catacomb is a maze of gloomy interconnected narrow pathways that twist around ancient tombs that children will enjoy exploring - a torch will prove useful!
